Dear Families

Ref: Family Consultation meetings feedback

At Abbot's Lea School we deeply value our students' families' involvement in our school community and active participation in, and communication about, their child's progress at school.

Earlier this term, we introduced another way to enhance that family and school partnership by launching Family Consultation meetings (typically known as Parents' Evening). Families were offered the choice of attending in-person meetings, where they could see their child's classroom and get a real sense of their daily environment, or, joining virtual meetings, making it easier for those with busy schedules or those unable to travel to the school.

Many families appreciated the chance to see first-hand where their child learns, plays, and grows, while others found the virtual option more convenient and accessible. By providing both options, we aimed to ensure that every family had the opportunity to engage in meaningful discussions about their child's progress in a way that worked best for them. We thank you all for your engagement and for the overwhelmingly positive feedback received on the day.

As we continue to refine our approach, your feedback is invaluable in helping us make our family consultations even better in the future.
